

Aaron Friedberg, Professor of Politics and International Affairs at Princeton University, speaks on “Is the Unipolar Moment Over?” on Feb. 15, 2007, at the Mershon Center for International Security Studies.

Aaron Friedberg (left) stands with Mershon Associate Sean Kay, professor of politics and government at Ohio Wesleyan University, who was instrumental in bringing him to Ohio. Friedberg is former deputy assistant for national security affairs for Vice President Richard Cheney.